Our Gift Shop has collectable's, gifts, jewelry and whale watching items you'll want as keepsakes of your whale watching trip.

All your whale watching needs and gifts can be found here!

To view and understand nature, field guides and other books are available. We have books selected for all age groups and needs.

In our Gift Shop we offer finely crafted jewelry. We have selected many designs with Cape Cod, nature and marine life in mind. For collectors that love marine life, sculptures can be purchased by Wyland, Cantrell and other renowned wildlife artists. We also carry a variety of replications of whalers scrimshaw at the store.

T-shirts and sweat shirts in a variety of styles, colors and sizes are a perfect choice for you or someone who didn't make the trip or perhaps a fluffy whale or dolphin for the kids or one of the many toys, crafts or science kits available.

Not Just Kid's Stuff

Whale watching trips are fun for entire family. After the trip check out our web site with Cetacean Station for kid's fun and educational games with photo scramble, word match and more! You can even compare your whale photos to the whale catalog on-line.

What to bring on your whale watch

You'll be out on the open ocean for 3-4 hours so you should bring sun block, sunglasses (polarized if you want to see the whales clearly through the water) and some warmer clothing. Wear sneakers or shoes with good traction. Don't forget a camera to share your experiences with others back home. Binoculars offer closer views of whales, birds and the Provincetown scenery. If you forget anything, don't worry, we have everything you need in our store at our Gift Shop.

Adventure, Fun & Science

Few experiences in life combine adventure, fun & science as does a whale watch in a protected marine habitat.

The Dolphin Fleet and Dr. Carole Carlson, our Science and Education Director, have developed a presentation aboard the vessels which weaves a fascinating story of the "Web of Life" on Stellwagen Bank – how the smallest of microscopic plant and animal marine life are connected to the largest whales in an intricate food chain which thrives on the unique geological formations within the Stellwagen Bank National Marine Sanctuary and Cape Cod Bay, both critical marine habitats.

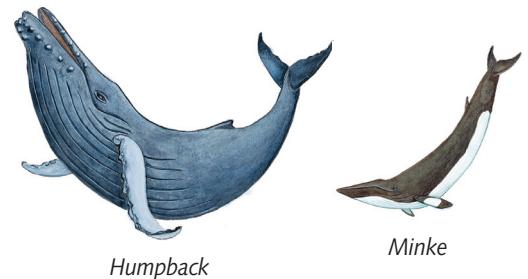

Passengers joining us are given our Naturalist's Guide, printed in full color, an extensive field guide to Stellwagen Bank illustrating the connections of great and small creature, finned and winged.

Of course, nothing can really prepare our passengers for the first sighting of whales blowing after a deep sea dive or tail flukes flashing as they dive again. We generally see humpback whales in Cape Cod Bay and Stellwagen Bank during our season; they are residing in our waters to regain body fat after their long migration from the Caribbean, where they calf. We frequently see mother and calf pairs for this reason, and we often observe mothers seeming to teach their youngsters how to 'breach' or leap out of the water from the momentum of a powerful resurfacing from a long, deep dive.

Passengers forget themselves in the passion of the moment, shouting and applauding, and in this moment it can seem that the whales are connected to humans on our vessels.

On board, with our newly enhanced education and research program, you can listen to whale vocalizations, track our vessel's movement on a chart plotter and view microscopic life. There are books of interest and a touch screen kiosk filled with information for you to use.

This is just part of the new program we have waiting for you. Our goal is that you learn, experience and enjoy the wonders of this special marine habitat. By cruising Cape Cod Bay and the Stellwagen Bank National Marine Sanctuary with the Dolphin Fleet you are, in effect, taking part in a scientific and educational expedition, designed to promote marine conservation for all ages.
